UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION MANUAL

[1970–71 Edition]

The 820-page publication—official organization handbook of the Federal Government—describes the creation and legislative authority, organization, and functions of the agencies in the legislative, judicial, and executive branches. It contains the U.S. Constitution and its amendments; 44 charts showing the organization of Congress, the executive departments, and the larger independent agencies; and lists the names and titles of more than 5,500 key Government officials, including the Members of Congress.

Supplemental information includes brief histories of Federal agencies whose functions have been abolished or transferred subsequent to March 4, 1933; brief descriptions of quasi-official agencies and selected international organizations; and a list of several hundred representative publications available from Government establishments.

The Manual is an indispensable reference tool for teachers, students, librarians, researchers, businessmen, and lawyers who need current official information about the U.S. Government.

National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1970

Proclamation 3997. August 24, 1970

By the President of the United States of America a Proclamation

For more than two centuries Americans have taken great pride in the contributions which men and women of Hispanic origin have made to the development of the United States.

The careful work of early Spanish explorers, teachers, and agriculturalists built a solid and graceful foundation for progress in many parts of our country, and their legacy is one of gentility and art. The striking churches and homes they built long ago are monuments to their vision; the lovely Hispanic names they gave to the lands they explored and tilled are epitaphs of their taste. More recent generations have helped to give new dimensions and fresh vitality to our music, our literature, and our food, and have brought a particular warmth and openness to our spiritual values and to our style of living.

In recognition of these gifts to our national life, the Congress requested in 1968 that the President designate a week to include September 15 and 16 as National Hispanic Heritage Week.

Now, Therefore, I, Richard Nixon, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim the week beginning September 13, 1970, as National Hispanic Heritage Week. I call upon all Americans, particularly those in the field of education, to observe that week with appropriate ceremonies and activities, and I hope that the week will encourage many Americans to extend a cordial welcome to the recently arrived immigrants and visitors among us who represent the rich heritage of Hispanic lands.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 24th day of August, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-fifth.

Richard Nixon

Details and Transfers of Federal Employees to International Organizations

Executive Order 11552. August 24, 1970

Providing for Details and Transfers of Federal Employees to International Organizations

By virtue of the authority vested in me by section 301 of title 3 and section 3584 of title 5, United States Code, and as President of the United States, it is ordered as follows:

Section 1. Leadership and coordination. The Secretary of State shall provide leadership and coordination for the effort of the Federal Government to increase and improve its participation in international organizations through transfers and details of well-qualified Federal employees, and shall develop policies, procedures, and programs consistent with this order to advance and encourage such participation.

Sec. 2. Federal agency cooperation. Each agency in the executive branch of the Federal Government shall to the maximum extent feasible and with due regard to its manpower requirements assist and encourage details and transfers of employees to international organizations by observing the following policies and procedures:

(1) Vacancies in international organizations shall be brought to the notice of well-qualified agency employees whose abilities and levels of responsibility in the Federal service are commensurate with those required to fill such vacancies.

(2) Subject to prior approval of his agency, no leave shall be charged an employee who is absent for a maximum of three days for interview for a proposed detail or transfer at the formal request of an international organization or a Federal official; an agency may approve official travel for necessary travel within the United States in connection with such an interview.

(3) An agency, upon request of an appropriate authority, shall provide international organizations with detailed assessments of the technical or professional qualifications of individual employees being formally considered for details and transfers to specific positions.

(4) Upon return of an employee to his agency, the agency shall give due consideration to the employee's overall qualifications, including those which may have been acquired during his service with the international organization, in determining the position and grade in which he is reemployed.

SEC. 3. Delegations. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this order, there is hereby delegated to the United States Civil Service Commission the authority vested in the President by sections 3582(b) and 3584 of title 5, United States Code.

(b) The following are hereby delegated to the Secretary of State:

(1) The authority vested in the President by sections 3343 and 3581 of title 5, United States Code, to determine whether it is in the national interest to extend a detail or transfer of an employee beyond five years.

(2) The authority vested in the President by section 3582(b) of title 5, United States Code, to define and specify "pay, allowances, post differential, and other monetary benefits" to be paid by the agency upon reemployment, disability, or death.

SEC. 4. Revocation. Executive Order No. 10804 of February 12, 1959, is hereby revoked.

Labor Day, 1970

Statement by the President. August 25, 1970

Theodore Roosevelt once said that the best prize life offers is the chance to work at work worth doing. As we celebrate Labor Day for the 76th time, we pay tribute to millions of Americans who have won this prize. For today we honor the working men and women of this country, citizens whose lives are enriched by the pride they take in their work.

Too often these days we find ourselves measuring our economic output primarily in quantitative terms. Too seldom do we remember that qualitative factors are equally important in achieving a stable and prosperous economy. How much we produce is one important question, of course. But we must also ask—with greater force than we have sometimes done in the past—how well we produce, how efficiently and skillfully we provide the goods and services of our economy, how effective and attractive and reliable are the results of our work, how much pride and satisfaction those results provide to the worker.

On this Labor Day, let us remember that our high standard of living, our advancing technological accomplishments, and our managerial capacity all must continue to be supported by a highly talented labor force if this nation is to retain its proud position of international leadership and further improve the quality of life for all of its people.

Let us also remember that the turbulence and uncertainties of our time have presented serious challenges to the working men and women of America. The problems that affect all—the search for world peace, the cost of living, the need to enhance our environment—often fall with particular impact on the working man and his family. It is an important fact of American life that they continue to show their faith in their country. They are grateful for what America has provided them in the past; they are loyal to what America stands for in the present; they are determined to help America achieve an ever brighter future.

The men and women who make up our labor force can be assured that the government of the United States will work closely with them in building that future. On behalf of that government, and on behalf of all Americans, I take this opportunity to salute and to thank the working men and women of this nation.

Selective Service Regulations

Executive Order 11553. August 26, 1970

AMENDING THE SELECTIVE SERVICE REGULATIONS

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the Military Selective Service Act of 1967 (62 Stat. 604, as amended), I hereby prescribe the following amendments of the Selective Service Regulations prescribed by Executive Orders No. 10001 of September 17, 1948, No. 10008 of October 18, 1948, No. 10292 of September 25, 1951, No.

11098 of March 14, 1963, and constituting portions of Chapter XVI of Title 32 of the Code of Federal Regulations:

1. Paragraph (a) of Section 1628.2, Registrants to Be Given Medical Interview, is amended to read as follows:

"Whenever the local board is of the opinion that a registrant in Class I–A, Class I–A–O, or Class I–O has one or more of the disqualifying medical conditions or physical defects which appear in the list described in section 1628.1, it may order the registrant to present himself for medical interview at a specified time and place by mailing to such registrant a Notice to Registrant to Appear for Medical Interview (SSS Form 219)."

2. Section 1628.2 is further amended by revoking paragraphs (b) and (c).

A twenty-fifth forum, which will open the Conference, will be a color, animated film, "I'm Me," made by children at the Yellow Ball Workshop in Lexington, Mass.

The White House Conference on Children will be held in Washington, D.C., on December 13–18. The 16-member forums will explore a wide range of issues affecting children up to 13 years of age, and submit reports and recommendations to the 4,000 Conference delegates. The forum chairmen and vice chairmen were selected from several thousand names submitted by professional and voluntary organizations dealing with children and by 55 State and territorial committees on children and youth.

The forums, a departure from the panels of previous conferences, will permit the groups to use a variety of settings and activities for their fact-finding and deliberations. These could include films, exhibits, workshops, and visits to schools and clinics. The forum chairmen can use whatever methods they consider appropriate to develop their reports and recommendations. They were designed to permit a multi-disciplinary approach to the issues affecting children.

A final report of the conference, and recommendations, will be submitted to the President in 1971. A separate conference will be held in Washington, D.C., in February 1971, to explore issues of major concern to youths, from 14 to 24 years of age. The Conference on Youth will examine such areas as foreign policy, environment, race relations, education, and drugs.

The national Chairman of the White House Conference on Children and Youth is Stephen Hess. Hess, before being designated Chairman, was Deputy Assistant to the President for Urban Affairs.

Fiftieth Anniversary of Woman Suffrage

Proclamation 3998. August 26, 1970

By the President of the United States of America a Proclamation

Fifty years ago today, Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State of the United States, certified that the 19th Amendment had become valid as a part of the Constitution.

It is hard for any of us living in 1970 to imagine a time when women did not vote. Yet for more than seventy-five years, American women faced adversity, ridicule and derision on every level of our society as they sought this precious right. Brave and courageous women, knowing their cause was just, drawing strength and inspiration from one another through generations, fought long and hard for Woman Suffrage. Their victory was a victory for civil rights in America and it marked the beginning of a proud, new chapter in our nation's history.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America do hereby call upon all Americans to recognize the great debt we owe to those who dedicated their life's work to the cause of Woman Suffrage.

While we herald their great accomplishment, let us also recognize that women surely have a still wider role to play in the political, economic and social life of our country. And, in respect for American women, let all of us work to bring this about.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 26th day of August, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-fifth.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of the Potsdam Conference

Exchange of Letters Between the President and Chairman Aleksey N. Kosygin of the Soviet Union. Released August 27, 1970

August 18, 1970

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Thank you for your letter of August 1 on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Potsdam Conference.

I agree with you on the importance of seeking mutually acceptable and just solutions to concrete international problems through appropriate methods of negotiation. It is our shared obligation to continue at all times our common efforts to preserve and strengthen international peace and justice. I therefore welcome—and join—your emphasis on the need to enhance our mutual understanding and cooperation in order to broaden the bases of peace and security.

Sincerely,

RICHARD NIXON

[His Excellency Aleksey N. Kosygin, Chairman of the Council of Ministers of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Moscow, U.S.S.R.]

Moscow, August 1, 1970

Dear Mr. President:

These days mark 25 years since the time when historic decisions were made in Potsdam crowning the great liberation fight of the peoples of the Allied powers, of all those who contributed to the defeat of German fascism.

The powers-parties to the Potsdam Agreement proclaimed as their aim the uprooting of German militarism and nazism. At the same time, they emphasized their intention to give the German people an opportunity to bring about a reconstruction of their life on a basis of peace and eventually take their place among the free and peaceful peoples of the world.

The Potsdam decisions embodied the will of the peace-loving peoples of Europe, America and other continents, and their determination not to permit a repetition of new military convulsions. They were political acts of the utmost importance, designed to unite the efforts of states in order, after the war was won, to win the peace. The Potsdam decisions convincingly demonstrated that states belonging to different social systems can attain mutually acceptable agreements on the most important and complex international problems, for the sake of universal peace and security.

The basic principles of Potsdam are to this day the foundation of the post-war peaceful structure in Europe. Their application in our days means recognition of the inviolability of the present European borders and of the political realities which have come into being as a result of World War II and post-war developments, and ensuring firm security on the continent of Europe.

The Soviet Union unswervingly adheres to the peace-loving and democratic principles of Potsdam. It advocates strengthening the foundations of European security, developing broad international cooperation and, to this end, discussion, in an all-European forum of present problems awaiting their solution. Just as a quarter of a century ago, we proceed from the assumption that with a strengthening of mutual understanding and cooperation among states and peoples, a stable and lasting peace may be ensured. To this we are committed by our sacred duty before the millions of compatriots who gave their lives for victory over fascism and reaction, and by the high responsibility for the life and well-being of the present and future generations.

Sincerely,

A. KOSYGIN
Chairman of the Council of Ministers of the USSR

[His Excellency Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States of America, The White House, Washington.]

Family Assistance

Statement by the President Urging Congressional Action. August 28, 1970

The most important piece of domestic legislation proposed by this administration is the Family Assistance Act. It has properly been described as the most important piece of domestic legislation of the past 35 years, one of the dozen or half dozen such bills in the Nation's history.

I have emphasized the need for this welfare reform on repeated occasions since this proposal was made one year ago—in a speech to the National Governors' Conference, in a speech before the White House Conference on Hunger, Nutrition, and Health, in the State of the Union Message, and in my remarks in St. Louis at the 50th annual convention of the Jaycees. Most recently, I have spoken about it privately to several members of the Senate Finance Committee.

I am gravely troubled by the fact that the remaining days of the 91st Congress are fast running out and Congressional action has not been completed on welfare reform. The present legislation is too far advanced, the need for reform is too great, for this to be permitted to happen.

The House of Representatives passed the Family Assistance Act on April 16, but the bill has been delayed by the Senate Finance Committee ever since. We have made numerous proposals for modification in the plan to meet the objections of Committee members. But ultimately the Senate as a whole must be given the chance to work its will on this issue and this bill. I urge this great and conscientious Committee of the Congress to get down to the hard business of marking up a bill as expeditiously as possible.

The House of Representatives, in its detailed and meticulous examination of the administration proposal, made a number of changes which were clearly improvements, and which have been wholeheartedly accepted by the administration. The Nation is much in the debt of Congressman Wilbur D. Mills and John W. Byrnes who led this inquiry, and who are the authors of the legislation which passed the House overwhelmingly in April.

There is every reason to think a similar process will take place in the Senate, and every reason to welcome this prospect. Thus it has been proposed that nationwide operation of the Family Assistance Program be preceded by a period during which the program would be field-tested. This testing period would begin January 1, 1971, in a number of areas chosen by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Thereafter the program would go into effect on a nationwide scale on January 1, 1972.

With time running out, and an historical social reform at stake, I have consulted with several cosponsors of the bill including Senators Hugh Scott, Robert P. Griffin, and Wallace F. Bennett, and we have agreed that, if the Senate accepts this modifying amendment, it will be acceptable to the administration.

The Nation needs this legislation. The House of Representatives has acted. The Senate now must act. I have every confidence that it will.
